A keylogger software is a program that records every keystroke made on a computer or a mobile device. This includes keyboard input, mouse clicks, and other system events. The software can run in background and be undetectable to the user, allowing someone to monitor another person’s computer activity without their knowledge or consent. Keylogger software can be used for legitimate purposes, such as parental control or employee monitoring, to track computer usage and ensure that employees are using company resources appropriately. However, it can also be used for malicious purposes, such as stealing sensitive information such as passwords, credit card number, and other personal data. It is important to note that using keylogger software without the knowledge and consent of the person being monitored can be illegal and unethical. So this is basically a security purpose software to record the keystrokes.
